Medagliani has moved to a bigger location. Walk through the mall at via San Gregorio 43, and you'll find it on the left-hand side. The selection of professional kitchen equipment is better than ever, with over 6,000 items on two floors. There's every possible size of every possible object that can pass through a kitchen. Handmade copper pots, flattened sauce spoons, uniforms, carts, cleavers, cruets, meat hooks, prosciutto vises, roasters, sifters, ladles, rolling pins, wooden spoons, pizza peels, buckets, bowls, serving dishes, the Fuf spit roaster, KitchenAid mixers and Cuisinarts for Italian current, and much, much more. Eugenio Medagliani, chemical engineer, painter, philosopher, historian, dreamer, and third-generation restaurant supplier, has combined his spheres of interest as designer of the pentapiatto, a white plate with a design of ridges that creates five separate sections, each to be filled with foods that balance harmoniously, both to the eye and the stomach. Check out the display of Eugenio's antique cooking tools and mold collection. Medagliani now takes credit cards and will, as usual, send purchases anywhere.
